letter from the ceo

Dear Hunger Heroes,

As another fiscal year draws to a close, my heart is filled with gratitude, optimism, and hope for the future.

Because of your caring attention to the needs of our low-income neighbors, Second Harvest Food Bank of Central Florida remains a mighty force for good in our community. You have made it possible to deliver another record-setting year of providing more food, for more people, from more sources, than ever before. Your generosity has made shortening the line of need through culinary training and job placement a reality. Most of all, your action on behalf of others lifted up the lives of people when they needed you most.

For these things, and for your future partnership, I thank you. Whether you contribute money, food, volunteer time, serve on our board, or advocate, let's continue to dream of all the new and innovative ways that we can close the gap on hunger once and for all. We can do it together!

Ever Forward,

Dave Krepcho | President/CEO

susan's success

Susan Anderson always loved cooking. When her wages stagnated, she lost her car and then her home. Susan applied to Second Harvest Food Bank's 14-week Culinary Training Program with the hope of a new beginning for her family.

"I was working in retail management and food service but my career was stalled," recalls Anderson.

Thanks to your generosity, Susan entered the Culinary Training Program and learned new culinary and life skills. The formal training taught her to focus on the task at hand, assess a situation and find a solution before moving on to the next step – skills she can use in the kitchen and at home.

Upon graduation Anderson found employment at the Walt Disney World® Swan and Dolphin Resort. "I have a job I love and I'm very good at what I do," says Anderson. "Completing this program gave me the courage to step outside my comfort zone and see the opportunities for better wages and marketable skills."

Susan's family received a new beginning and a bright future, thanks to you.

finding grace

From a young age, it was instilled upon Grace that if you work hard you can be successful. She worked hard, graduated from college and began teaching. She and her husband, who works in IT support, bought a home and became parents. They were fulfilling all of their hopes and dreams.

But when her children were diagnosed with autism and sensory processing disorders, the number of medical appointments and therapy sessions weighed on their calendar and their budget. "One unexpected expense can throw your life into a tail spin," she says. "I never thought I would experience hunger. I did everything I was supposed to do to be on the right track."

Thankfully, Grace has found support through her church and a local food pantry supported by Second Harvest Food Bank of Central Florida. The pantry offers some of her kids' favorites, like apples and peanut butter.

"Life is hard," Grace says, "but being hungry and trying to keep it all together is harder."

Grace knows when she leaves the pantry, she can go home, enjoy a meal with her family and focus on her kids.
